S. F. SUPERVISORS MEET COUNTY BOARD HERE FOR DISCUSSION OF JAIL SITE

Board Told that Opposition to Proposed Site on Coastside Has Waned During Past Few Weeks; Several Sites To Be Presented for Choice by Board

The San Mateo county board of supervisors have no prejudice against San Francisco locating its jail on the coastside of the county. This was the assurance given a committee from the San Francisco board and Sheriff William J. Fitzgerald at a conference held at the court house in this city Wednesday. Sheriff Fitzgerald outlined the plans of San Francisco for constructing its board members here. He explained that 200 acres would be needed for the jail, which will house approximately 600 prisoners, the large tract being required in order to carry out the plans of the city to give agricultural employment to the inmates and to teach them industry, so that they will be better fitted to become useful citizens upon their discharge. This plan is now being used in Los Angeles and a number of the larger cities of the east and is proving very successful, said Sheriff Fitgerald.

Sheriff Fitzgerald assured the local board that only misdemeanor cases would be housed in the jail, and that the prisoners would be discharged from the prison in San Francisco and not in San Mateo county.

Asked by Supervisor Rosalie M. Brown why San Francisco wanted to locate its jail in San Mateo county instead of in its own city, Sheriff Fitzgerald explained that San Francisco offered no site large enough to meet the needs of the proposed plant. "San Francisco appreciates the very friendly feling that exists between the two counties," said Sheriff Fitgerald "and we do not desire to do anything that will interfere with this friendship."

Fitzgerald revealed that the city had two tentative sites for the jail in the vicinity of Princeton, and that it was expected that a third site would be offered within the next week. The procedure, said Sheriff Fitzgerald, is to have San Francisco decide on one or more definite sites and then submit a plan to the San Mateo county board. A hearing would then be held in the matter and the people of San Mateo county given an opportunity to protest, if they so desired.

Chairman Manuel Francis of Halfmoon Bay, said there had been some opposition to the location of the jail on the coastside, but he felt that considerable of this opposition had been withdrawn during the past few weeks. In fact, said Chairman Francis, there is a petition now being circulated on the coastside in favor of the jail site.

The San Francisco supervisors who attended the conference were Warren Shannon, J. Emmet Hayden and Sylvester Andriano. They, with Sheriff Fitzgerald and Supervisors Francis, Brown, Hickey, John Poole and Dr. Thompson, and County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman, were the guests of Mayor Daniel R. Stafford at the luncheon of the local Kiwanis Club at the Hotel Sequoia Wednesday.

Boxer Guilty of Shoe Theft

Angelo Pappas, local boxer, was found guilty in the court of Judge Edward I. McAuliffe yesterday afternoon of a charge of petit larceny preferred by the United Sales Agency of this city. Pappas was charged with having stolen a pair of boxing shoes from behind the counter of the cigar store during the latter part of last month. He stated in his own defense that he had taken the shoes with the consent of the proprietor, Gordon Seeley, but this was denied by the latter.

Pappas was represented by David Cosgrave as his attorney. Richard Bell, assistant district attorney, conducted the prosecution.

The judgement of the court followed immediately upon the trial, and time for sentence was set at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

War Department Gives "OK" to S. F. Bay Bridge

Long Battle for Sanction of Bay Bridges Won In Washington

AFFECTS TWO BRIDGES

Vote by Congress Assured During Session

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4 (UP)—Approval by the War Department of plans for the San Francisco Bay Bridge today removed one of the last barriers before construction starts.

Work can now begin on the 72,000,000 project in a reasonably short time if it is authorized by Congress, and residents of this region were cheered by reports that Rep. Florence P. Kahn, Rep., California had said in Washington today that a vote on her bill might be expected at this session.

Provided the measure passes, two large bridges will be built here, the Golden Gate Bridge for northbound traffic and the San Francisco Bay Bridge to run east and west.

Voters of northern California counties last November passed overwhelmingly a $35,000,000 bond issue for the Golden Gate Bridge, which will be 8943 feet long from the San Francisco Presideo to the Marin county shore. Work on this structure will start July 1, furnishing employment for from 200 to 400 men the first year and more in following years. Engineers believe it can be finished in four years. In addition to the actual cost of the bridge, the Government has furnished army reservation land at each terminal valued at several million dollars, and the state will build approaches at a cost of thousands of dollars.

The San Francisco Bay Bridge would provide more work than this project, FromRincon Hill in San Francisco to Goat Island would be four 1700 foot cantilever spans with 600 foot anchor spans at each end. Between Goat Island and Emeryville, suburbs of Oakland, would be a 720 foot deck cantilever span and 21 steel deck spans, each 300 feet long.

This would make a total length of 15,020 feet, and probably twice as many men would be employed on it as on the Golden Gate Bridge.

The Bay Bridge plans call for two decks, with a vertical clearance of 212 feet. Six traffic lanes would be on the upper deck, while there would be sufficient room on the lower deck for four interurban tracks and sidewalks.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (UP—The war department gave its approval to the bill of Rep. Florence P. Kahn, Republican, California, providing for the construction of a toll bridge across San Francisco bay in a letter today to Chairman Parker of the house interstate and foreign commerce committee.

The bill authorizes a bridge from the Rincon Hill district of San Francisco to Oakland by way of Goat Island.

Reverses Stand

Action of the war department reverses a stand taken more than a decade ago when San Francisco first proposed erection of a bridge to Alameda county.

Because of opposition from the navy department the war department declared its unalterable opposition to a bridge over the bay and even went so far as to declare a definite policy to bind the department in the future. This policy declared it would never approve a bridge north of Hunter's Point under any circumstances.

San Francisco has been knocking at this decision for more than a decade but it has always stood as the impassable barrier between the bay city and its desire to build a bridge to Alameda.

Committee Wins Navy

The way for a change of heart on the part of the navy was paved when President Hoover himself appointed members of a committee which worked with committeemen named by former Governor C. C. Young of California. The committee chose a site from Rincon Hill, below Market street to Goat Island. This gives a high span and avoids encroachment on the proposed navy base site at Alameda. These concessions won over the navy department which finally notified the war department that it had withdrawn objections to a San Francisco bay bridge.

The bill now awaits approval of the committee which is believed certain. Its passage by the house and senate is conceded.

HOT CLASHES MARK DAY IN WILLETT DEPOSITION

Marked by the same type of clashes between the attorneys which have characterized the former hearings in the case, the taking of the deposition of Mrs. Eudora Forde Willett, alleged mother of Mrs. Constance May Gavin, continued Wednesday in the court room at the courthouse. Mrs. Willett, as at the previous sessions of this hearing has often stated that she did not remember many important points in the case.

The outstanding development of the case Wednesday was the admission of Mrs. Willett that she believes "the generosity of the Flood family" might reward her for her recantation. Attorney John Taaffe, attorney for Mrs. Gavin, who is seeking $4,000,000 of the $8,000,000 Flood estate on the ground that the late James Flood was her father, dwelt for some time on the alleged social unpopularity of the then Maude Fritz, now Mrs. Flood.

At a previous deposition some two years ago Mrs. Willett told of a meeting on Van Ness avenue between herself and Mrs. Rose Flood, James Flood's first wife. At that time she said that Rose Flood, Maude Fritz and the baby Constance were on one side of the street and that she and her mother were on the other side. Rose Flood, she stated, crossed over the street to see her, but Maude Fritz refused to cross and would not let the little girl go over. Her statement at that time was that Mrs. Rose Flood said, "She will break my heart acting like this—she isn't like me, she is selfish, and she isn't liked very well socially.

At the hearing on Monday Mrs. Willett denied this story and said that she was not on Van Ness avenue, but that the meeting was between her mother and Mrs. Flood and that the story of the meeting had been told to her by her mother. When asked why she had at first stated that she had been present she had replied, that she had said so at the suggestion of Eugene Aureguy, attorney for Mrs. Gavn.

"Now, isn't it a fact," asked Taaffe Wednesday, "that during the many sessions with attorneys from the office of Garrett McEnerney that it required for you to make this recantation affidavit, that at one time Mr. Baker (attorney for Flood estate) told you that when the depositions had been forwarded to the present Mrs. Flood in New York that she objected to the socially unpopular statement and that she wanted that blotted out of the testimony?

"And that you then were told to say that you had not been with your mother that day on Van Ness avenue and that you hodn't heard such a remark," Taaffe continued.

"No," returned Mrs. Willett, "Aureguy told me in the first place to say I was on Van Ness avenue."

"And did he tell you to put the words in Rose's mouth?"

"I don't remember," she returned.

Mrs. Willett who claimed during her deposition that James Flood was the father of the woman, whom she claims is her daughter, now states that the father was James Cannon, a property man at the old Grove Street Theatre. On Wednesday Taaffe threw doubt on this statement when he asked concerning her visits to the Grand theatre on Mission and Third streets, where her mother was playing. Mrs. Willett said that she had visited the theatre several times a day for two weeks, and remembered most of the names of those in the production. Asked who the property man was she said "I don't know. I wasn't interested in property men. I only knew the actors."

This was four years after the birth of her child, and according to Taaffe, the same James Cannon was at that time property man at the Grand theatre. He alleges that on many occasions she met Cannon, but failed to recognize him in spite of her story of the romance between them four years before.

At one time during the cross examination today attorneys for Mrs. Gavin sought to learn from Mrs. Willett the name of the woman who introduced her to the Flood family many years ago.

"I won't tell you that," Mrs. Willett shouted. "I won't tell anybody that, not even the judge."

Later she admitted that guards had been employed to watch her home and nurses to treat her but heatedly refused to say who was paying them.

The hearing was marked by several hot clashes between John Taaffe and Garret McEnerney, attorney for the Flood estate.

Mrs. Willett told in detail the taking of her daughter to the Flood home in San Francisco. "O, such a dear little thing," Mrs. Rose Flood is reported to have said. "I'd like to have it." She is then said to have said to her husband, "Jim, I'd like to have this baby." "Why do you want to bring such trouble upon yourself, Rose?" he is reported to have said. "But its a life, and the mother is such a sweet girl." Mrs. Willett then says that she and her mother told Mrs. Flood that the father was James Cannon.

Attorney Taaffe asked if Mrs. Flood believed that the child was an illegitimate. "Mrs. Flood was a liberal minded woman and must have known the child was illegitimate because of the difference in the parents name. My mother introduced me as Miss Forde," Mrs. Willett replied.

Mrs. Willette said that Flood was in the next room when she told Mrs. Flood that Cannon was the father of the child, and she supposed that he overheard the conversation. She couldn't account, however, for an affidavit which she made later for Flood, and in which she claimed that the father of the child was an Edward Stearne. She said she was paid $3,800 for the affidavit.

Life Proves Tough Break For Easer

Life is just one thing after another for Easer. In fact it proved to be two things yesterday when Easer John Lloyd Jones, alleged salesman, appeared in the court of City Judge Albert Mansfield of San Carlos on a charge of illegal possession of liquor and of illegal transportation of the same. Judge Mansfield fined Easer $500 on each account, or provided that he shall serve 250 days in jail on each count in lieu of the fine.

Jones is already serving a four months jail term on a charge of driving while durnk, and when he finishes all his jail terms in this county, a San Francisco officer will be waiting at the jail door to conduct him to San Francisco, where he will be tried for stealing an automobile.

All of Easer's (he says his parents were going to name him Ebenezer, but could not agree on the name so shortened it to Easer) troubles began when he was piloting an uncertain way along the Highway through San Carlos on December 20. When San Carlos officers set after him he speeded up, and the officers had to run him into an electrolier in order to bring him to a stop.

MEMPHIS, (UP)—J. J. Carrigan, sea food dealer here, recently said there was no truth in the saying that eating fish and drinking milk will give you ptomaine poison. "My family have been doing it 20 years," he said.

THIS IS NEWS

News has been defined as the unusual. That being the case, this is news, and it will always be news when two motorists collide and one admits that the collision was his fault.

So the collision on Wednesday between a car driven by Mrs. Billie Jones, 70 Alvisor street, San Francisco; and W. J. Murphy, 149 6th street, San Francisco constitutes news. The police report contains only one statement, 'Mr. Murphy says that this was his fault."

The collision occurred at 2:15 Wednesday afternoon on the state highway just south of Roosevelt avenue. It was investigated by Chief of Police Collins.

COUNTY TO RECEIVE $42,206.79 IN FEES FROM GASOLINE TAX

Autos Registered from San Mateo County Number 24,427 in Last Registration; State to Divide $6,775,073 With Counties

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Stac Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 6 (UP)San Mateo county will receive $42,206. 79 as its share of the $6,775,073 apportionment of motor vehicle license fees collected by the state of California in 1930, it was announced today by Frank G. Snook chief of the division of motor vehicles.

This apportionment was based upon a total registration of 26,156 vehicles in the county, divided as follows: Passenger cars, 24,427; solid trucks, 307; pneumatic trucks, 926; motorcycles, 137, and trailers, 359.

"Despite a rather adverse business year, motor vehicle registrations showed a net gain of 62,325 in 1930," said Snook. "The year's total was well over the two-million mark, being 2,099,293, including motorcycles and trailers."

From the total of all license fees collected is deducted the cost of the California highway patrol, under the law. The remainder is divided "50-50" between the state division of highways and the 58 counties of the state. Each receive the sum of $3,387,536 this year. Thus the money paid by the motorist for his license plates is returned in the form of more and better roads.

Of the motor vehicles registered during the 12 months last year, 1,941,969 were passenger cars. Solid trucks numbered 15,500; pneumatic trucks, 83,887; motorcycles, 9,405; solid trailers, 9,563 and pneumatic trailers, 38,969.

Los Angeles, with more than 40 per cent of the motor vehicles in California, drew the "lion's share" of the appropriation, or $1,384,263.58 to be spent on her highways. San Francisco was next with $254,655.91, and Alameda county third with $239,435.90.

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk on Natural Gas

San Francisco Supervisors Visit Club After Meeting

An illustrated lecture on natural gas and its uses was given before the Redwood City Kiwanis club Wednesday by R. M. Seel of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company. Seel's talk was illustrated by motion pictures of the oil fields, where the natural gas is secured, pumping plants which send it to all sections of the state, labor saving machinery for constructing and laying pipe lines and industrial uses of the gas.

The Kiwanis club had as its guests three members of the San Francisco board of supervisors, Supervisors Warren Shannon, Emmet Hayden and Sylvester Andriano; Sheriff W. J. Fitzgerald of San Francisco; and Supervisors Thomas Hickey, C. V. Thompson, Rosalie M. Brown and Manuel Francis of this county. Supervisor Poole of this county is a member of the club and was also present at this meeting. The San Francisco sheriff and the supervisors were in Redwood City Wednesday to hold a conference in regard to the location of San Francisco's new jail, which the city wants to build on the coastside of this county. County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman, a former member of the Redwood City Kiwanis club and its first president, and W. J. McCann, of San Francisco, were also present as guests of the club. The visitors were introduced to the club by Mayor D. R. Stafford of Redwood City.

Lively Program At Yomecan Club

"Entertainment Night" was a big affair at the Yomecan Club on Wednesday evening at the Sequoia Hotel. The president, Norbert Lambert, secured Tom Kane, manager of the Sequoia Fox Theatre and a group of eight entertainers of exceptional merit.

Walter Kellogg, Jr., was chairman of the meeting. After handling the fines and the attendance prize drawing, he introduced Tom Kane as the master of ceremonies bf the entertainment.

Fred Blackington and Tony Belice in a saxaphone and banjo duet team gave a number of very splendid selections both during the meal and immediately thereafter.

Two juvenile tap-dancers, Muriel Williamson and Ernest Flook of Burlingame gave an exhibition both in singles and doubles which showed very exceptional talent. Clifford Flook was their accompanist.

Eddie Brown, a versatile harmonica player, gave several very novel numbers. Among these was the use of a miniature harmonica not more than an inch and a half long, and another number in which he used his nose part of the time in playing the instrument.

Miss Charlotte Weaver gave a very humorous monologue dealing with the "miniature gold craze." Her number brought a big hand of appreciation.

Miss Livia Gurlin was encored again and again for her splendid numbers on the piano accordion.

After the entertainment a rising vote of thanks was given Tom Kane and the entertainers by the young men.

Charles Irvin was welcomed into the membership of the club by Elmer Steinke, chairman of the Yomecan educational committee.

Alien Representation

A proposed amendment to the Constitution, as provided in a resolution that was introduced in this session of Congress, whereby the representation of each state in the House of Representatives would be based upon the number of citizens in the state rather than the number of persons, is attracting an increasingly large amount of interest and bids fair to become an issue in this or succeeding sessions of the national legislative body in the near future.

Those in favor of this proposed amendment contend that the present method of apportionment gives an unfair advantage to the states within which there is centered a large number of aliens; and that aliens, though not allowed to vote by the laws of any state, might indirectly exert a balance of power on legislation of national import. It is further pointed out that large industrial centers, which naturally attract the majority of immigrants, are given a larger number of representatives in Congress and consequently a proportionally greater number of electoral votes in presidential elections. In answer to those who state as their objection the desire to adhere as nearly as possible to the plan adopted by the framers of the Constitution, it is said that the demarcation between citizens and aliens at that date was not clear, nor had the term citizen been clearly defined in this country. There was no recognized procedure in naturaization, and practically the only requirement was an oath of allegiance; that at that time a number of the states allowed all persons to vote regardless of whether or not they were naturalized.

The purposes and reasons for such an amendment to the Constitution apear fundamentally sound. To those who believe in a representative form of government, with each citizen equally represented in its legislative bodies, the idea back of the resolution proposing the amendment has a particularly effective appeal. At least, the resolution deserves a chance and not the fate of being pigeon-holed and forgotten.

The Screen

The motion picture screen, before which millions of people throughout the world are seated day after day and night after night, might be characterized (borrowing a thought from the immortal bard) as holding "as 'twere, the mirror up to Nature." In a sense this opinion may not be very far wrong when it is considered that the silver sheet, or screen, mirrors the news events of the entire world, aside from portraying in dramatic form the human passions such as love, hatred, courage, cowardice, etc.

However, like the mirror in the amusement park, which is cunningly devised with inverted and convex features, the purpose of which is to provoke gales of laughter from people viewing their thus distorted shapes, the motion picture screen all too frequently is made to portray photo dramas that picture life as it decidedly is not, and in doing so imbues the minds of the audience, especially those of the younger generation, with unwholesome and in many cases vicious desires which they carry away from the theaters and seek to inaugurate in their everyday lives.

The United States "feeds" the world with motion picture productions. There can be no doubt on this point and, hence, South American, European and Asiatic peoples are afforded rather puzzling, composite views of what the natives of the United States must be like. Foreign nations are blaming their problems of crime and juvenile delinquency on the influence of American-made pictures. It seems that the youth of every nation is too wiling to emulate the notorious characters, both men and women, that flit across the screen with tiresome persistency.

Then there is another point to be brought out, certain producers through a peculiar sense of wishing to "save" the youth of today have put on the market "daring" films which are advertised as "telling everything and showing everything," thus to save the youth from the results of ignorance he must be inoculated, as it were, with lewd suggestions and spicy situations that are enacted before his eyes by trained actors and actresses. How this type of picture succeeds in getting by the censors, so-called, is a mystery that would baffle Scotland Yard.

The French Institute has created a department of American slang for the benefit of Frenchmen who plan to visit America and understand the language. If we had the time we would like to take the course so we could understand the detective stories in the Sunday supplements.

There are all sorts of people in the world. For instance, there is the fellow who is willing to work and can't find the job, and then there is the fellow who has work to do and just dreads having to do it.

Our Growing Tax Bills

The National tax bill for the last fiscal year was approximately $13,500,000,000; or just below $111.00 per capita. It was $875,000,000 in 1913; $1,382,000,000 in 1925; since which date it has expanded nearly 1000 per cent in 1930. If allowance of one-half of this sum is made for the great war and the enormous expenditures it entailed, which is altogether too large, there remains 500 per centum of increase to be reckoned with. Meantime, State and Municipal indebtedness grew between 1912 and 1925, from $3,104,426,000 to $11,650,000,000 or nearly 400 per cent. Since the latter date it has increased 33 1-3 per cent and at this time its growth is abnormal, because funds are said to be needed for public works which will furnish employment to the idle segments of our population.

Without approving or condemning this program it may be said that the continued growth of our tax bills is reasonably certain, unless a policy of retrenchment should be widely adopted. But of that there is no outwards and visible sign. In any event we may be sure that payment of our tax bills will be increasingly difficult for the next decade. Such a condition is wholly incompatible with genuine prosperity, and hence retards its return. Government competition with private industries, even though in embryo, but actually resolved upon, would be an added detriment to public enterprise. An industrial nation at a time like this which would seriously consider the expedience of such a policy, would display a degree of unwisdom as hurtful in results as deplorable in judgment.

It would seem that the time is propitious for laying all such experimental movements upon the table until business gets on its feet, and demonstrates its ability to resume its march forward. Many insist that such a situation would be urged as an imperative reason for leaving them on the table until business activities lagged again. Perhaps a better plan would be to let them remain on the table permanently. For we may be sure that whenever men in industrial associations begin serious encroachments upon sound commercial principles and practices, or decline to observe the fundamental divisions between the limits of private expansion and the public regulation evolved from experience and approved by time, they will be brought to a halt by the government fully sustained by an overwhelming public opinion.

No Call for Gloom

The continuation of unemployment is leading in some quarters to an unjustified pessimism, a feeling that there will never be enough jobs again, that part-time employment such as the five-day week will be necessary to re-establish business on a firm business.

The gloom idea is probably best summarized in a recent estimate that the productive ability of the United States exceeds by 25 per cent the nation's power of consumption.

The truth is that the nation's consumptive power changes from time to time. Just now it seems low. Another year it will be high. The consumptive power of the country is dependet on the income of the citizens thereof and their willingness to spend this income. The buying power of the public is not so great now somehow or other it will eventually increase and the wheels of industry will be clicking along at a pleasing rate.

Of course there will always be industrial establishments which can produce more than they can sell. It would be strange if it were otherwise. It is the natural and normal situation.

Production must be based on consumption. Basing it on rosy expectations is likely to result in over-production. When this occurs there is a pause until this surplus is used up or junked. Then everyone goes to work again on a more sensible production plan.

An employer who would depend upon philanthropists and taxpayers to repair his broken machines and maintain his plant and equipment would be regarded as a very poor business man. Yet most employers take it for granted that the workers they turn off in times of depression will be fed, clothed, warmed and sheltered somehow, either at private or public expense, until they need them again when business revives. Without realizing it, such employers are industrial parasites.—Royal Meeker, former commissioner United States Bureau of Labor Statistics.

National Egg and Poultry Institute are providing newspapers with a printed sheet of news of radio programs and news features regarding eggs and poultry products, as a clipsheet, to be used without cost or charge for newspaper space! Wonder how much free space the radios are giving them?

We are all of us unconscious teachers to all who come into contact with us, by what we think, say, and do.—Aaron Wirpel.

Faith is not blind acceptance but a willingness to go into the laboratory of mind and there verify the promptings of our intuitions, which are in reality the voice of God calling us to divine adventure and endless exploration.—Henry Victor Morgan.

Love's Sacrifice

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

Sally Todd and Lois Montgomery seek careers in New York. Sally enters hospital training, after despairing of a career in the movies, and Lois marries a wealthy man many years her senior. Their paths diverge somewhat, for Lois's husband disapproves of Sally, who is very gay. On several occasions, after late parties, she has taken drugs to carry her through the day and is dismissed from the hospital. Lois provides her with a home and Dr. Dale Randolph offers her a job. She falls in love with him. He is strongly attracted to Lois. Sally, befuddled by drugs, tells him she loves him. He dismisses her, but Lois persuades him to give her another chance. Sally, instead of being grateful, becomes jealous. Lois's husband is informed that she is in love with Randolph. He watches her closely, particularly when she is in Randolph's company. Sally's brother, Bert, who was in love with Lois at home, comes to New York. Sally tells him Lois is unhappily married and still in love with him. His attentions to Lois bring a remonstrance from Walton. Lois does not suspect that her husband, who resents her failure to aid him in realizing his social ambitions, is getting very tired of her. Hoping to find her in some indiscretion, he has her shadowed. He enlists Sally as an ally.

Chapter 56

Runaway

The inpulse to run away had seized Sally so suddenly that she felt literally yanked from her pillow. She wanted to get away from herself, from Bert, from Lois, but most of all from the consciousness of her own failure, her own weakness.

All day she had been under the nurse's eye, and it had been impossible for her to take the drug that her nerves now demanded. Then, just when she had persuaded the woman to go for a walk, she was horrified to see her gather up several garments and carry them down-stairs.

What luck! Sally hid her face in her pillow and stifled a scream. She had hidden her store of dope in the hem of a night dress, and now the nurse had taken it away. What would happen?

She waited until she heard the outside door close and then darted down to the kitchen. It was deserted. There was a noise in the laundry, and the maid appeared at the door.

'Did the nurse bring down some of my things?" Sally faltered.

The maid nodded. Sally rummaged frantically for her secret store. It was gone! In a burst of ungovernable temper she ripped the garment to pieces and threw it to the floor. Then she rushed upstairs and threw herself upon her bed, blind with tears.

Everyone was an enemy! She was tired of being watched, spied upon, managed! The sound of Lois's voice awakened an unhappy train of thoughts and memories. Bert's laugh and the rumble of a strange male voice drove her frantic. She rose and slammed her door so hard that the windows rattled. There was a little satisfaction in dismissing the nurse, but that didn't last long. The end of the afternoon found her beside herself.

When she heard the doctor's car in the drive, she stole down-stairs and listened at the door of the living-room. There she overheard Dr. Randolph say that he had cut off her supply of drugs and that Lois must not give her any more money — that it would only go for drugs.

Selly tiptoed to her room and noiselessly locked the door. In a few minutes they would be coming up to see her. "Very nice of them," she muttered. "The prigs."

She had a sudden childish impulse to frighten them. "If I just disappeared," she thought, "it would scare Lois half to death. I don't suppose Dale would care."

She glanced out of the window. It wasn't far to the ground. She could step to the roof of the porch from the window and climb down from there to the ground on the wisteria vine that covered one end of the porch.

The voices of Lois and Dale Randolph came to her from the stairway, and, with a quick glance around, she opened the window and began the descent. But she didn't see Bert coming toward the house as she scuttled across the stretch of lawn that lay between the house and the woods beyond the fence.

Once in the woods, her excitement cooled, and she began to wish that she had stayed in her room. It was chilly, and she hadn't a wrap. Soon it would be dark, and what would she do then? The sensible thing would be to go home, but her pride wouldn't let her do that — at least, not immediately.

She heard voices calling, Bert and Dr. Randolph were shouting her name. She retreated to a clump of berry bushes as the voices came nearer. Bert rushed past her hiding-place. She remained motionless, and then she heard his voice at a distance, telling Dr. Randolph that she was not in that part of the woods.

Sally waited until she could bear the silence and twilight no longer. A dog began to bark somewhere up the road. A lonely sound! If they weren't going to look for her any longer, she might as well go back. She started for home, but before she had taken a dozen steps, she had tripped over a root. When she tried to pick herself up, she found that she couldn't stand. Her ankle pained terribly. She tried to rub it, but even that was painful.

She felt herself becoming faint and she clenched her hands and tried to hold onto consciousness by sheer will-power. The pain seemed to come in waves, and each time she felt weaker. A fine ending to her defiant gesture! Well, this was the way she always did things. Couldn't even stage a successful disappearance. Suddenly it seemed to grow very dark indeed. . . . .

Lois was walking frantically up and down the living-room when Bert and Dale Randolph appeared. She burst into tears when she saw that Sally was not with them.

"Don't know where she could have gone," muttered Bert. "She had scarcely any start. She must have cut back to the road and gotten a lift from some motorist."

"This is all my fault," said Lois to Dr. Randolph. "I should never have opposed your plan to get her to a sanitarium immediately after that scene in your office. If anything happens to her, I'm responsible."

Dale Randolph shook his head. "This might have happened even at a sanitarium," he said. "You mustn't blame yourself. We'll find her soon. She can't have gone far."

"Has the nurse left yet?" asked Bert.

"No," said Lois. "She was packing, when all this happened. She said that she wanted to see the doctor as soon as he came, and I forgot to tell her. I'll call her now."

The nurse came down-stairs, carrying a little package. She handed it to Dr. Randolph. "I found this stuff early in the afternoon," she said. "There may be more hidden in other places."

Dale Randolph nodded. "I know where to look for her now," he said. "She is on her way to town to get more. No use of our trying to find her here. I'll start back at once."

"But you'll stay here, won't you, Lois?" Bert urged.

"I suppose I ought to," she assented, but she wished with all her heart, as she saw the tail-light of Dale Randolph's car dwindling down the drive, that she were at home. Sally's house had become unbearable. She wanted to run away from it herself.

"I'm going outside," she told Bert. "No, don't come with me. I wan to be alone."

World Politics Lecture Given

The third lecture by Dr. Raymond Garfield Gettell in the series on "World Politics" was enjoyed last night at the Palo Alto Woman's Club house by a large and interested audience. Choosing as his subject "the United States in World Politics", Dr. Gettell sketched the developments by which the United States has come to be a full-fledged nation, the richest and most powerful in the world, that inevitably must play a part in world politics.

"Three periods mark the nature of our foreign policies of the past," stated Dr. Gettell. "During the Colonial period we were drawn into foreign affairs because of our dependence upon England and because of the shipping that had been built up through our great merchant marine. Then followed the Monroe Doctrine and the period up to 1898, when we put into practice the policy of isolation, and developed the internal resources of our country. But, the war with Spain marked the turning point in our history, for it gave to us colonial dependencies which, coupled with our relations with Latin-American countries, has necessitated our participation in world politics.

The same conditions do not exist now as did in the early times when Washington in his Farewell Address warned against " entangling alliances," stated Dr. Gettell. Then we were a weak country, needing to devote our whole energy to developing our own national resources. Now, we are a great nation, the strongest in the world, and whether willing or not, we must play a part in world business, or in other words, in world politics. We must have a national policy in world affairs so as to play that part well, not ill.

The next lecture will be given on March 4. That both the speakers and the topics of discussion are of unusual popularity is noted in the increasing number of people attending each lecture.

The Lincoln Troop of Girl Scouts is planning a Valentine party to be given for the inmates of the Relief Home on February 14. A program of entertainment will be given and the girls will make valentines and home-made candies. Mrs. R. E. Savage is in charge of the troop.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy Woodhams and children who are motoring to New York, stopped over for a sojourn at Clay Center, Kansas, and visited relatives of Dr. Woodhams there. They left here last December, after an extended visit and will leave New York in March, for their home in Africa, where Dr. Woodhams is doing missionary and medi cal work.

Mrs. Vera Jones Bright of this city has arranged an exhibit of pictures at the Lincoln grammar school to be shown for a week, beginning last Wednesday. The pictures are reproductions of the old masters and copies of work by Jessie Wilcox Smith. The public is invited to view these works.

Cars To Be Regulated by Plenty of Legislation

By J. F. McLAUGHLIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 6 (UP)—Not content with regulating every movement of the family automobile on the highway of California, the state legislature is now proposing to regulate even its "stable,"—the garage.

After the smoke of bill-introducing had cleared away, it was found that 70-odd bills had been introduced to regulate that venerable vehicle.

From the time it protestingly coughs and sputters when you step on the starter in the morning, until the engine is "killed" at night, the old "bus" would face a flock of new laws at every turn, if all these proposals are enacted.

The proposed laws cover its speed on the road, its equipment, where it is allowed to go where it must turn, stop and its load of passengers or freight.

Some lawmakers even suggested that the rear license plates be perforated with small holes so the tail-light could shine through and illuminate the license number at night.

The family car must carry bumpers, fore and aft, and the family poodle must not ride on the fenders, according to other bills.

The speed limit would be lifted, and reckless driving only prohibited by law. But now even its hours of rest must be under the watchful eyes of the law.

The departments of public works and public health would be required to enforce the "garage" law providing that public garages have at least 50 per cent of the two opposite sides equipped with windows for ventilation.

Failing in this, a mechanical ventilation system would be required that would exhaust a quantity of air not less than six times the cubic content of the building each hour.

In larger structures housing automobiles, the mechanical ventilation feature would be made mandatory.

CANADIAN SECT PLANS FIFTH GREAT TREK

Doukhobors To Settle On Ranch In Mexico After Trip

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mexico, Feb. 3 (UP)—Movement of the Doukhobors from Canada to the Santa Clara ranch near here, planned as soon as the Mexican Government grants permission for the trek, will be the fifth great migration for the sect in its 800 years of history.

So well have the leaders of the communist religious colony managed its affairs in recent years that there will be plenty of funds left for transportation after the 650,000 acres of the great ranch are purchased. Special combination freight and passenger trains probably will carry the Doukhobors and the trip will be made in greater comfort than any of the previous migrations.

Through the Doukhobors are not aggressive and make no attempt to impose their beliefs on their neighbors, the sect has been in more or less conflict with authority ever since it was founded in Russia during the 13th Century by a wandering Prussian soldier of Quakerish orthodox church, Czar Alexander I required them all to live in the Tauris area.

The second movement was from 1840 to 1850. The Doukhobors refused to serve in the armies of Czar Nicholas I because of religious scruples and he banished them to the savage Trans-Caucasus on the Turkish frontier. To the surprise of their oppressors, the Doukhobors thrived and multiplied.

In 1887, Czar Alexander III ordered universal military service enforced in the Doukhobors colony and the conflict was renewed. In 1895, the Doukhobors burned all of the arms they could find in protest. This so incensed Czar Nicholas II that he sent Cossacks against them, driving 4,000 persons from Tiflis to Georgia.

Count Leo Tolstoy was responsible for the fourth migration. He heard of their plight, and with the proceeds of "Resurrection," his last great novel, and donations from British philanthropists arranged for the Doukhobors to emigrate to Canada.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 4 — Dudley Moulton, San Francisco horticultural commissioner, will be California's next director of agriculture.

He will be appointed by Governor Rolph some time about the middle of this month, after a meeting of the advisory state board of agriculture.

This was definitely learned by the United Press from reliable sources, shortly after the meeting of a group of representative southern California farm leaders and nurserymen, with the governor here. They demanded Moulton's appointment so that agriculture in the south might "have a square deal."

A similar meeting will be staged about February 15—at the time of the agriculture board's meeting — when a delegation of "dirt farmers" from all parts of the state will appear to call for Moulton's appointment.

As predicted in this column some weeks ago, the governor finally got around to appointing Dr. Giles S. Porter of Los Angeles as state director of public health. He settled the difficulty with Dr. George Sabichi of Bakersfield, another outstanding applicant for the same job, by naming him deputy director and chief of the bureau of epidemiology.

Dr. Porter is already on the job, succeeding Dr. Walter M. Dickie of Berkeley. The position pays $6,000 a year, and that of Dr. Sabichi, $4,000.

Orange county was recognized in a large, substantial way by the governor when he appointed Joseph P. Smith, Santa Ana realtor, as state corporation commissioner, succeeding Stephen Barnson of San Diego, resigned. The governor also named Phil Stanton of Anaheim as a member of the state highway commission.

Rumors still persist about the capitol corridors that State Highway Engineer C. H. Purcell is considering flattering offers of an executive post with a private organization. These reports continue despite the fact that a bill is before the legislature to increase his salary from $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

Speaking for rumors, the governor isn't saying much these days about his reported plans to divide the department of social welfare into two parts, creating a brand-new department of "child welfare" in order to provide directorships for two women, Mrs. Rheba Crawford Splivalo, "Angel of Broadway," and Mrs. Harry Michaels of Los Angeles.

All the pompous splendor (and yards of gold braid), which characterized the gay days 20 years ago, when California's governor was surrounded at formal functions by a staff of military aides, is to be revived by Governor Rolph.

He proposes to name 10 colonels, five from the California national guard and five from volunteer citizens. Their chief qualifications would be the ability to wear and look smart in a uniform—with epaulets, braid, brass buttons, sword, Sam Browne belt 'n everything! They must provide the uniforms at their own expense and act at formal functions without pay. Candidates will form a line at the right of the governor's door!

Spelling Bee To Be State Fair Feature

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 6 (UP)—"Spell phthisis . . .valetudinarianism . . .embarrassed."

It won't be long before boys and girls of Redwood City will be spelling "jawbreakers" like these in an effort to win fame for their city and fortune for themselves at the annual spelling bee at the California state fair next September.

A gold medal and $100 in cash will be awarded to the best spellers in grammar and high schools of the state, Ellis Franklin, director of the educational department, has announced.

"We are asking that each school send its best spellers to the county seat, where an elimination contest should be held," Franklin said. "The winners would be sent to the state fair for the final contest. These annual spelling contests are staged to help along the cause of education and will be profitable to the winners."

Prizes in grammar and high school divisions will be the same: First prize, $100 and gold medal; second prize, $75 and silver medal; third, $50 and bronze medal; fourth, $25 and ribbon, and ten $10 prizes with ribbons.

Miss Phyllis Brown of Ripon, San Joaquin county, now holds the high school championship, and William Feidler of Biggs, Butte county, the elementary school honors. Miss Brown had a perfect score, not missing a single word.

Winners, however, in a previous state fair contest will not be permitted to participate in any later contests.

"Only one high school and one elementary school will be eligible from each county," said Franklin, "and we urge that all cities and counties in California take steps at once to arrange for a representative in both the grammar and high schools contests, holding preliminary events as often as desired."

Ice Causes Labor Problem

OCONTO, Wis., Feb. 4 — (UP)—Early breaking of the ice on Lake Michigan produced an unemployment problem and a financial crisis in commercial fishing here this winter. Mild weather and a strong offshore wind drove ice from the bay and carried out a large number of nets. Several of the 74 commercial fishing concerns here lost all their equipment.

SPEAKING of SPORT

Track Season In Full Swing

The indoor track season of the east will reach one of its climaxes here Saturday when the Millrose Athletic association games are held.

This event is ranked as one of the top features of each winter season. The A. A. U. championships and the I. C. A. A. A. A. meets are other competitions of greatest importance.

Ray Conger, relatively youthful veteran of the Illinois A. C. will be a chief performer in the Millrose games. Held to be one of the outstanding milers in competition today, Conger will attempt to secure premanent posession of the Rodman Wanamaker Mile trophy. Conger has twice won the event for which this cup is the prize. As popular in the east as he is in his native midwest, Conger is certain to hear a full-throated cheer of support as he makes his attempt at third victory.

Dr. Paul Martin, the Swiss surgeon and track athlete, is sure to be Conger's leading rival in the mile. Leo Lermond of the Boston A. A. is another formidable contender.

The cup, when is it finally won, will be one of the most cherished awards of amateur sport. Joie Ray who won two earlier Wanamaker cups, holds one leg on the present one. Paavo Nurmi, held by many observers to be the greatest runner of the age, also has a leg on this cup, as does Lloyd Hahn of the Boston A. A.

The Great Shires Has Proper Spirit

Charles Arthur ("The Great") Shires, who used to confess he is the world's greatest baseball player, is to start the 1931 season as a member of a minor league team. He was transferred from the Chicago White Sox to the Washington Club and has now been moved to the Milwaukee Club of the American Association. When informed of the deal Shires promptly promised to "play his head off" for the Brewers. This, of course, is definitely the proper spirit. It's a commendable utterance to be made by anyone, but seems especially fitting from one who used to say such flatering things about himself.

Shires hasn't, however, lost all of his esteem. Already he has admitted he believes his tenure at Milwaukee will be brief. He is certain that he belongs in the big time.

SPORT BRIEFS

CLUB FANS STILL AWAIT PROMISED SHAKE-UP

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (UP)—William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Cubs, surprised the baseball world late in 1930 by announcing the "registration" of Manager Joe McCarthy. At the same time Wrigley stated the new pilot would be Rogers Hornsby, former leader of the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves, and more recently second baseman for the Cubs. Since the day of these two announcements, followers of the game have been looking for the "shake-up" which the new pilot promised.

Up to the present time, however, no shake-up has been apparent in the Chicago club, except the acquisition of four pitchers and the release of several men to the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League Club in payment for Ed Baecht, "ironman" of the Los Angeles pitching staff. Besides Baecht, Hornsby obtained Bob Smith of the Braves, Lee Sweetland of the Phillies and the ancient Jakie May of the Cincinnati Reds.

Weak Pitching

Weak pitching, more than anything else, kept the Cubs from winning the National League pennant in 1930, and why Hornsby should sign three hurlers who are no better than average, is not apparent. It was thought he may have done this for the purpose of using the men later on in a trade, but with the training season opening soon, no trade rumors have been heard on the North Side.

Last season's pitching staff—Root, Blake, Malone, Bush, Osborn and Teachout, has been added to by the signing of the four hurlers mentioned above. At best, this group can be termed only fairly good. One of Hornsby's first tasks is to groom at least three of these men to be able to stay on the mound for a full nine innings, something very unusual in the last edition of the Cubs. One bright spot is the fact that the peppery Gabby Hartnett will be behind the bat again. Hartnett beyond a doubt is one of the best catchers in the National League. His greatest rival in the catching department is the peerless Mickey Cochrane of the champion Athletics.

Grimm and Kelly

At first base the Cubs have Capt. Grimm, who is still better than average, but not the first baseman he was two years ago, and George Kelly, obtained from Minneapolis last season. Kelly is a ten-year man and may not be a member of the Cubs when the season gets underway. Grimm cannot stand up under the strain of a full playing schedule.

Hornsby insists he will play at second. This remains to be seen, but in the event he changes his mind the spot will be filled by Clarence Blair, an in-and-outer of no unusual ability.

Shortstop will be patrolled by Woody English, one of the finest infielders in the game. English shows up equally well at short or third and may be alternated at these positions with Clyde Beck.

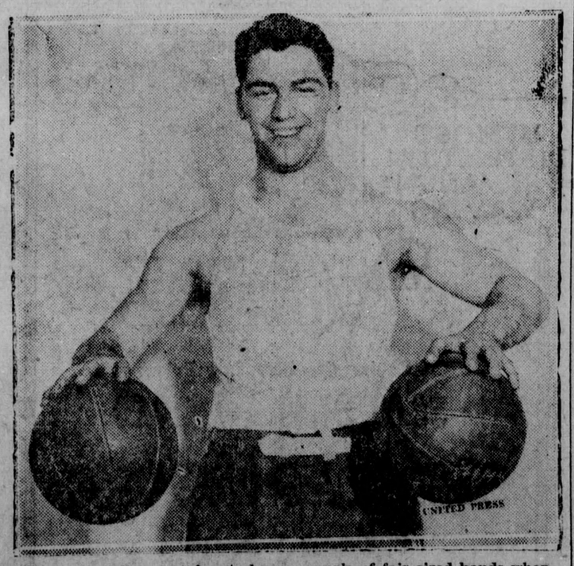
At third Hornsby plans on Les Bell. Bell was handicapped last year with a bad arm which slowed him up.

The outfield will be patrolled by Wilson and Cuyler, two stars of the day, in center and right, and possibly Johnny Moore, a two-season rookie working in the long Chicago left field. Stephenson probably will be rtained as a pinch hitter.

Rummy Game Ends in Suit

PHILADELPHIA, (UP) — A friendly game of rummy between two young married women, developed in a free-for-all fight, then ended in a lawsuit. Mrs. Alice Balter was declared winner when a jury ordered Mrs. Yetta Wasserman to pay her $1 damages. Mrs. Wasserman said that the fight started when Mrs. Balter threw an electric train at her, but Mrs. Balter convinced the jury that she was the injured party.

A HAND--Y YOUNG MAN



This young fellow promises to have a couple of fair-sized hands when he grows up. He answers to the name of George Theodoralos, and he's star guard on the Sacramento, Cal., high school basketball team. George, as he can be seen from the above picture, experiences no difficulty in holding a regulation basketball in either hand, palm down.

Sequoia Cagers to Battle Burlingame

Second Round of P. A. L. Will Be Opened With Game In Burlingame

Opening the second round of the Peninsula Athletic League the Sequoia Union high schooi varsity and 7130's will clash with the Burlingame high school cagers in the Panther gymnasium this evening.

When the varsity teams from the two schools met in the first league contest three weeks ago, the Cherokees won 27 to 16. But now the team will be without the services of Alber and DeLacy, and in addition Bugge, first string guard, is ineligible for the game because of scholastic difficulties.

The Cherokee 130's were nosed out in a close tilt with the Panther lightweights, after scoring more points than the Panthers in the last half, while the Burlingame margin in the first half was too great to overtake. Morgan in now at guard for the '30's after a leg injury that makes it impossible for him to compete in varsity competition. His presence in the lineup will strengthen the Cherokees chances.

The Indian 130's have met with hard luck this season, losing the game with Paly last week by one point and being nosed out by three points the week before when they met the San Mateo Bearcats. However, when the team meets the Panthers, the Sequoia lads hope to win the league game and redeem themselves in the ratings.

An interesting comparison of the two varsity teams is the fact that San Mateo defeated Sequoia 29 to 18, and trimmed the Panthers 30 to 13. According to pre-game prospects the Cherokee fans have a right to expect victory when the teams meet this evening.

The two league leaders, Palo Alto and San Mateo, tangle this evening. This tilt will probably decide the varsity championship for this section of the P. A. L.

Following is the Sequoia and Burlingame tentative starting lineups:

Sequoia	Varsity	Burlingame
Langbehn	forward	Witherspoon
Cullen	forward	Head
LeRoy (C)	center	Johnson (C)
Lewis	guard	Jones
Silva	guard	Hankins
	130's
Thimbler	forward	Rustice
Peri	forward	Heckenpemper
Graham (C)	center	DeMastric
Morgan	guard	Gordon
West	guard	Gherini

Sequoia Box Team Shows Improvement

Arrangements are being made with San Jose high school for a boxing meet with the Sequoia team to be held within the next two weeks. The Cherokee boxers are continuing to show marked improvement, and material that seemed green at the start of the season has been developed into a formidable outfit.

The squad suffered a setback when captain George Hoench, assistant coach, withdrew from the team in order to devote more time to his studies. His loss will be keenly felt by his teammates.

Awards will be given at the end of the season to reward the Indians for their efforts. Coach Clay Hite may add other awards for individual performance.

Menlo J. C. To Meet Sequoia in Water Polo

Menlo junior college will be the first opponent of the Sequoia Union high school water polo squad, when the two teams clash in the first league game of the water polo loop in the Sequoia pool next Monday.

Led by Captain Jim Adams, the Cherokees have a squad composed of veterans who should be capable of coping with the powerful Jaysee team.

Martin, Frank and Stewart Goldthwaite, Captain Adams, Cartwright Gibbs, and Price make up the roster of the Cherokee team. Coach Jim Eva, swimming and water polo mentor, has scheduled several other practice meets for the Cherokee paddlers.

Three Baseball; Four Track Teams Started

Track and baseball are the spring sports now underway at Sequoia Union high school. These sports were greeted with large turnout of boys anxious to make one of the three teams open in baseball or one of the four teams in track.

Coach Leonard Casanova is in charge of the baseball team, while Coach Ray Dimick is taking charge of the track squad. A number of practice meets and games are being arranged by the coaches for their respective sports.

Because of the wet grounds the teams have been unable to get down to organized practice, but as the weather is expected to clear up the candidates will soon be out on the athletic fields for their practice.

Girl's Cage Teams Win Three of Four Contests

Capturing three out of four games at the recent playday the Sequoia Union high school girls' basketball have teams finished their season. Schools participating inthe playday were San Jose and Burlingame.

Results of the games were: Club Three, 68; Burlingame frosh, 6; Club Two, 30; San Jose seniors, 6; Club One, 13, Burlingame juniors, 14; and Club Four, 20; San Jose juniors, 13.

Refreshments of hot chocolate, cake, and marshmallows were served the players after the games in the school cafeteria by the girls' board of athletic control.

"Reducing" Provides Ample Amusement

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran have scored another comedy "ten-strike" with "Reducing," their latest Metro-Goldwyn Mayer picture which opens Sunday at the Sequoia Theatre, showing at the matinee and in the evening and again on Monday and Tuesday nights.

"Reducing" has been admirably directed by Charles "Chuck" Riesner, who also weilded the megaphone for "Caught Short," the previous comedy triumph of the hilariously funny pair.

The picture pokes fun at beauty parlors in the same hilarious way its predecessor took a fling at Wall street. The plot concerns Pauline Rochay, beauty parlor expert, who invites her sister, Marie, to come from the country for a visit with her whole family.

Hits Merry Pace

What happens when the buxom Miss Dressler loads her extensive tribe aboard a Pullman, and unloads them at the Grand Central Station, New York, starts the laugh ball rolling and it doesn't stop for and hour and more.

As is customary with modern full length comedies, a serious love story underlies the laugh-making. In "Reducing" it concerns Anita Page and William Bakewell; Sally Eilers and William (Buster) Collier, Jr. These four personable young people do their work delightfully and act as splendid foils for the two comediennes.

Lucien Littlefield as Elmer, mail-carrier husband of Marie, gives his usual excellent performance.

WESTMONT, Pa., (UP)—When the house sergeant picked up the receiver of his phone, he was greeted with shouts of "murder." Hastily he sent a wagon lead of police to the house. When they arrived they found Mrs. Norman Bierly's pet dog had been run over and killed. They buried him.

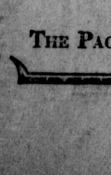
The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made



To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. ● It will gradually darken streaked, faded or gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

GIRL SCOUTS STUDY BOOKS WITH GAMES

Sequoia district Girl Scouts have more than met the national swing toward literature. A full city contest was held at the library, and an original game was played in which an author's name was given, and the first patrol to name three books by that author was awarded one point. The game was won by the Live Oak troop.

Another game was hidden titles. Each girl was given a copy of an amusing story in which the titles to many books were used in the text. Girls underlined the titles they recognized, and troops were scored according to the total of points made by members. High troops were Cardinal and Lincoln. The Wilderness troop of Woodside has also played this game.

The "book ball" and the literary party which takes the form of amusing games, are also becoming popular as indoor entertainment among the Girl Scouts. The "ball' is a masquerade, to which the girls come usually in costumes, suggesting the title of their pet book. The costume, however, is not essential, for they may simply have somewhere about their persons an article indicating the name.

Two favorite games are known as "book trail" and "authors." To play the first, the leader writes on several cards the names of authors, with whose works the girls are familiar through previous reading. Each girl in turn has a card pinned to her back. Then standing in the middle of the room surrounded by the others, she must guess whose name she carries, her only guide being the innuendos of her companions and their veiled references to the writer's works.

The game of authors is equally diverting and instructive. This time the leader collects photos of well-known writers and, while displaying them prominently, gives the girls a brief resume of their best-known stories. On a subsequent evening she pins one photo on the wall, and the girls must write down what they remember about the author and his works.

It was Ruskin who said that, if you read five pages of a good book word for word, and letter for letter, you are forever in some degree an educated person. If that be true, the number of the educated among the Girl Scouts this winter, is liable to increase at an astonishing rate, thanks to the new games.

MENLO PARK

Governor Rolph, on his way to his ranch Friday in the Alpine district, had his dinner at a local restaurant, breaking bread with the laborers, and others who frequent the eating house. After the meal the genial governor conversed with his fellow diners and on the sidewalk met members of the Rolph Club. He conversed with Mayor Weeden, W. E. Monroe, W. E. Dale and other officers of the organization that gave him unstinted support at the primaries during the primary election last August. Of late considerable of his time is spent at his mountain ranch to be away from the hungry hoard of office seekers who are camping on his trail. They can't find him in the fastness of his mountain abode.

Father Thomas J. McKeon, an assistant pastor of the Church of the Nativity here twelve years ago, was installed president of Calistoga Parlor N. S. G. W. recently. He has the distinction of being the first Catholic priest to become a president of a Native Son Parlor in the state. In recent years Father McKeon has devoted much of his time in lecturing on pioneer data and Indian names and is an authority on the early history of Napa and Lake counties. After his ordination from St. Patrick's Seminary some years ago his first appointment was assistant in Menlo Park. During his time here he was initiated a member of Menlo Parlor, and here he secured his inspiration as a Native Son worker. He will head a delegation to the next grand parlor to be held at the historic city of Monterey.

The members of Menlo Parlor N. S. G. W. have arranged a program for an entertainment to be given shortly in which many Native Sons of Menlo Park will participate. The parlor is preparing to give weekly dances at the Blue Moon ball room. These social affairs are to attract attention to the organization as well as providing pleasure and revenue to the parlor. All the members are enthusiastic concerning their plan of entertainment for the coming spring.

Miss Elizabeth Rock, sister-in-law of James G. Mason, passed away in San Francisco on Wednesday of last week following a brief illness. She had reached the ripe old age of 78 years. Her girlhood was spent at Mountain View, where her father was prominent in the seventies. Her sister, Miss Annie Rock, now a teacher in a San Francisco high school, was the bookkeeper for Duff and Doyle in the eighties and was widely known here. The deceased also was quite well known having visited the Mason family frequently. The funeral was held last Saturday.

Judge Jean Hoss of Menlo Park was called to tie a marital knot on Saturday morning in the Menlo Park city hall when he married Miss Roma Alexander of Redwood City to Frank A. Dayton, 1175 Channing avenue.

The taking of a deposition in the Flood will contest case at Redwood City Wednesday drew a number from here to hear the testimony. All the old timers are familiar with the case.

Miss Katherine Aylward, the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Aylward, was among those on whom graduation honors were conferred Wednesday morning in St. Joseph's hospital chapel by Archbishop Hanna. Miss Aylward is now a full fledged nurse. She will follow her profession for the present in St. Joseph's hospital.

Last Monday evening the city hall was crowded with an eager throng to listen to the F. J. Furnivall trial, charged with violating the city's building laws. Considerable interest was centered in the case and much testimony was produced on both sides. Attorney A. J. Stebbens of Redwood City appeared for the defendant, while City Attorney Whitworth prosecuted the case for the council. The jury deliberated for a short time and brought in a verdict of not guilty. Those who served on the jury were Henry Hayden, R. G. Bowles, J. H. O'Keefe, G. Daecker, G. Huggins, W. Leach, Miss Elsie M. Hardy, M. W. Carter, and A. Arellanes.

A little after one o'clock Monday morning the fire department was called out to extinguish a blaze in the rear building of the Roper grocery store, moved a day or two before from its old moorings at the north of the lot. The department after much work succeeded in saving the front structure, but the rear building was destroyed. The stock of groceries was slightly damaged. The entire loss will be $2500. Both the building and contents were covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. The old building that was burned was erected in the early nineties by the late Blanchard, the lower story being used by him as a butcher shop, and the upper portion for many years was occupied as a lodge hall, leased by Menlo Parlor N. S. G. W. and sublet to other societies. Some years ago the upper part was destroyed by fire. For a long while Mr. Roper used it as a residence. Captain Whittaker highly commended his men for their excellent work on this occasion.

With Mrs. Herbert and James E. Murray as hostess and host, the Companions' Card Club met at the home of Mrs. Herbert on the Alameda last Tuesday evening. A delightful game of whist was enjoyed by the club members. The first prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ryan.

William F. Knox, a former attorney of Utah and a former superior judge of that state and for some time residing at University Park, near Menlo Park, has rented an office in the Murray building and will practice his profession here. His son is a practicing attorney at Oakland, having some time ago graduated from Stanford. He resided with his mother at the family home while attending the university. Mr. Knox, senior, is an able attorney and should do well here.

William and John O'Farrell, sons of John O'Farrell, formerly residing in Menlo Park, are now priests of the Jesuit Order, the latter being ordained two years ago and the former last year. The years of their novitiate were spent at Los Gatos. Mr. O'Farrell was a gardener at the Stanford home for many years.

Father James Doyle, a former Menlo boy, was here Wednesday calling on old friends. He is the youngest son of the late James R. Doyle, a San Mateo County pioneer. Father Doyle for some years has resided in Seattle. He left yesterday for his new assignment at a Jesuit College in Los Angeles.

The appraised value of the estate was $105,291. A portion of this was expended in the administration of the big estate.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan 30 (UP) —If someone came along and offered you a choice of brains, or sex appeal as tools with which to crash the movies, which would you select?

Sex appeal, no doubt, would be named by eight out of a dozen persons—but after talking to Melvin Brown, director, there is a shadow of doubt in the matter.

Brown came out flat footed in favor of brains. Sex appeal, he declared, was so emphasized during the silent pictures that it became highly over rated.

Here is the way he explains his stand:

"There was a time, perhaps when mere sex appeal was a certain qualification for movie stardom, but the diminishing popularity of these stars proves to me that the pendulum has swung the other way. Audiences have come to respect good acting, irrespective of age or appearance. The talkies, no doubt, have done much to change this point of view."

And then Brown (who isn't rated as a talker in Hollywood), paused long enough to regain his breath, he went on to name a few stars to prove his point.

Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels, Ruth Chaterton, Betty Compson, Evelyn Brent and Mary Astor were included in the group.

"Don't misunderstand me," Brown warned. "I'm not saying these actresses lack sex appeal. I'm saying they have sense enough to hide it under a mantle of intelligence and clever acting. Sex appeal is secondary. It takes brains to be an actress."

One of Brown's recent successes was "Private Secretary," in which he directed Mary Astor.

Simplification Of Procedure In Courts Is Plan

Attempted Settlements Out Of Court Advocated To Cut Time

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 6 (UP)—A novel plan for simplifying court procedure in San Mateo and other counties of California is now before the state legislature.

It would require both parties in a lawsuit to reveal important facts, documents and writings pertaining to the controversies to each other in advance of trial and attempt settlements.

The plan, originated by Superior Judge Myron Westover of Los Angeles, has been used with remarkable success in England for decades. If adopted in California, it would save the loss of millions of dollars in time and opportunity through court congestion, delays, etc., its proponents believe.

Such nationally-known jurists as Owen J. Roberts, recently appointed to the United States Supreme court bench, have pronounced Judge Westover's plan as sound and workable.

"For lawyers who now prepare with statements of witnesses and trial briefs, practically no additional work would be required," Judge Westover explained.

"For others, fuller preparation would be required, but all would be done at times and places most convenient for council and witnesses, and at great saving in time and money.

"Tampering with witnesses or manfacturing testimony would be almost impossible in view of the affidavits before the court, which council could check from their copies. Witnesses would be examined as at present, on direct, cross and rebuttal examinations. Their affidavits would not be used as evidence unless so stipulated.

"With the principal facts known to all before the trial, the court could intelligently direct it as our code contemplates. At present the judge hesitates to act, not knowing the facts or the plans of council.

"The testimony of value could be presented under this plan in a fraction of the time now consumed. Some lawyers have estimated that half the cases would be settled without trial, due to the exchange of information, and that the half remaining could be tried in half the time now consumed.

"Cases would be better prepared and trials more satisfactory as to court, council and clients. Justice would be more sure, swift and economical."

BLUE & WHITE STORES ANNOUNCE EXPANSION

Blue & White stores, who are represented in Redwood City and vicinity by 7 stores, announce that these popular food stores now have stores located in southern California.

Sponsored by Smart & Final, wholesale grocers with houses in Los Angeles, Santa Ana, Pasadena, Long Beach, Wilmington and San Bernardino, this expansion will embrace approximately one thousand stores.

The growth of Blue & White stores has been over a period of about six years. Starting in 1924 with about one hundred stores in Spokane, Washington, it grew to cover a thousand stores in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. In 1929 the territory in California, which reaches along the coast from San Francisco to Los Angeles, was added with 400 stores. By the close of 1931, approximately 2400 individual merchants will display the Blue & White store sign and store colors indicating their membership. This will make this group of stores the largest grocery organization in the west.

The economic principals which have been their motive power for growth. These principals maintain the public interest and welfare jointly with that of the community grocer and keeps in the community all the earnings which are invested to the benefit of all.

Each Blue & White store is individually owned by the person who operates it and there is no financial connection between the several stores. This gives each owner the opportunity to remain in, and contribute to the welfare of the community in which he owns property and has his interests.

In joining under the banner of Blue & White stores, these individual grocers group their buying, which gives them purchasing power second to none. Their merchandising and advertising programs are also grouped. The whole plan works toward efficient distribution of foods, making better values and greater savings for the consumer.

Blue & White stores in California have carried their advertising with the newspapers of the several communities in which they operate. These store owners recognize the important part the local papers play in the welfare of the community and give great credit for their successful growth to the response from the messages and specials which have been carried on the pages of the local papers.

Highway Patrol In Opposition To Abolishment Of Speed Limit

Raising Speed Limit Would Mean Increase in Death Rate Is Claim

By PAUL K. GUY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 6 (UP)—State highways in San Mateo county would soon become red lanes of death, if bills before the state legislature to abolish the 40-mile speed limit are enacted.

Such is the warning of the California highway patrol, which points out that more automobile deaths in the state are the result of excessive speed than any other cause.

It's not the big centers of population that have the greatest percentage of deaths, a survey by the patrol disclosed. In rural districts, that would prohibit your pet poodle road leads drivers to "step on the gas," the auto death rate is much higher.

"The greater the speed, the greater the chance of death if an accident occurs," declared Superintendent E. Raymond Cato, of the California Highway Patrol, commenting on the survey, "and the greater the chance an accident will occur.

"Collisions at speeds less than 40 miles per hour may or may not result in serious injuries or fatalities, but accidents at greater speeds are almost certain to cause at least one death.

"Rigid speed restrictions are a vital necessity for public safety," he concluded.

Bills to be considered by the legislature in the second session include proposals to change the present speed limit on the highway from 40 to 45 miles per hour, and an amendment to abolish speed limitations entirely.

Champions of the latter system cite several eastern states that have no specific speed limit, merely requiring that cars be driven at speeds "consistent with public safety," and claim the experiment has met with great success and popularity.

Under this plan, motorists are subject to severe penalties if convicted of driving in a manner as to jeopardize the lives and property of others.

JACKSON, Miss., (UP)—When asked how he was going to pay his taxes this year, Mississippi's governor, Theodore G. Bilbo, replied, "I'm broke, too, and will have to borrow some money somewhere, like everybody else, and pay 'em."

Menlo Man Wins Building Suit

F. J. Furnival, Menlo Park furniture man was the winner in a court contest with the city of Menlo Park in the court of City Judge Jean Hoss of that city. Furnival was on trial for an alleged violation of the city's building code and refusal to vacate a portion of his building which was alleged to have been constructed contrary to the provisions of that code. The trial was heard before a jury of 11 members, and resulted in a verdict for the defendant.

Furnival was ordered by the city council of Menlo Park to vacate a portion of a structure on Oak Grove avenue, which, it was charged, had been constructed in violation of the building code. Furnival refused and at the order of the council a citation was issued ordering him to trial. This was the second trial for Furnival, as about two months ago he was tried for violation of the building ordinance in connection with the same building. At that time the jury disagreed and the charges against him were dropped.

The trial this week took three hours, and hour of which was needed for selection of the jury. A panel of 25 prospective jurors was drawn and when this panel had been used with only 11 jurors in the box, it was agreed by attorneys that the case should go to the 11 jurymen rather than call a new panel.

A GREAT BIG APE! SAYS---LOOK AT ME!

I am not a monkey says the big ape—I belong to the conservative type, and I don't chatter; but this I say to him who dares battle with me, that I am a great big ape and Wall Street leads me by the neck.
The great big ape worries about how the Clarence Saunders Stores can offer the two and one-half cents extra savings on each dollar purchase. The secret of that extra two and one-half cents is that the Clarence Saunders Stores don't belong to the ape family and wear no Wall Street collar.

There are no extras to send to Wall Street—we give the extras to the people. There are no extras to pay for bonuses and other things that must be paid as extras for the price of the Wall Street collar.
No! Clarence Saunders Stores have nothing to pay for consolidations, and the extras that go with consolidations. That is the why of the extra two and one-half cents that we can give to our customers and still make a profit.
